Case Study - Clayton RSL

The Clayton RSL Committee identified that their venue was in urgent need of redevelopment, in order to provide a warm and welcoming environment for its members, whilst appealing to young families and attracting casual visitors.

After exploring a number of potential options through various contractors and service providers without much success, Clayton RSL engaged MAX for fresh ideas and help developing effective solutions.

By leveraging the existing MAX and RSL partnership, the Clayton RSL Committee engaged the MAX Venue Design team to discuss their requirements. Through a highly consultative process, the result was an aesthetically pleasing, seamless, cost-effective transformation, delivered with minimal disruptions to their daily business.

“By taking our plans to MAX, everything shifted. They were able to apply expertise to make sure we transformed in practical and sustainable ways. It was a whole of venue transformation, not just focussing on gaming.”

“I’ve been in the RSL industry for 20 years and this is the first refurbishment project I’ve felt confident in.”

Gary Molloy, General Manager – Clayton RSL
